Large Number of County People Taken by the Hand of Death During the Past Week
Many Prominent Persons. The Funerals

MRS. J. HOWARD WERT

Mrs. Emma Anglinbaugh Wert, 65, widow of Professor J. Howard Wert, of many years a resident of New Oxford, Hartshorne, died suddenly in New York on Saturday night at Chapman Hospital, Mount Sinai, after having been ill for three days, the cause of death being a stroke of the heart.

Mr. Wert was born October 12, 1856, in New York City, and had resided there until his marriage to Professor J. Howard Wert. During the battle of Gettysburg he was a member of Company C, 10th Pennsylvania Cavalry, which was driven on the first day in a hull of bullets. He carried water to the soldiers in the field and until the bullet became so thick that she was not able to go further.

In 1869 Professor Wert was county superintendent of the Adams county schools, and Miss Anglinbaugh Wert was a teacher in the public schools of Adams county, where she taught for 10 years and in 1873 went to Herisfield, residing there three years.

Mr. Wert, who had been failing a number of years, went to Mount Hope, Newark, several weeks ago with his daughter, Miss Anna Wert, a widow of the former teacher training school in Herisfield. She seemed to improve at the resort, and Sunday appeared particularly well, but Monday morning her daughter and her husband had commanding rooms in the Inn and as they were preparing to leave, she suffered a stroke. Wert had a fall in her mother's room. She found her collapsed upon the floor, and was immediately sent to the hospital, where it was determined that nothing could be done.

Death resulted shortly afterward. Besides her husband and daughter Mrs. Wert was survived by her son Howard Wert, a postal agent; Edward H. Wert, attorney-at-law; Sam Wert, a son; John Wert, a painter; Philip Beale, a son; Frank W. Wert, news editor of the Philadelphia "Inquirer"; George E. COUNTY BASE BALL SEASON

Rapidly Drawing to a Close. Many Strong Teams Played Large Number of Good Games. Now Oxford Took the Honors.

The beginning of September is bringing to a close the baseball season in Adams County. The same months have witnessed many games and contests between the various county towns, which would have creased to please many times the size of those in which the contests were held.

Some exceptionally strong teams were developed in the early part of the season, but the contests were not always of the quality which they fully deserved.

The Oxford Indians, one of the best teams ever to play in the county, were defeated in their opening game by the Gettysburg Indians, who were weak with the loss of their star player, Jimmie Johnson.

After a hard-fought contest, the Indians won the game, but the Gettysburg Indians were the better team.

On the strength of the Indians' win, the Gettysburg Indians were declared the winners of the season.

The Indians' win was due to the fact that they were the only team to play all of their games in the same park.
